

Your Kids and Technology

A PARENT'S SAFETY GUIDE

In a world where kids are growing up with technology all around them, it is important for you to have the right information to help them. In this guide we will give you resources you can use, tips, and talking points for you and your children.

DEVICE MONITORING

Monitoring your kids' online devices is a challenge. We understand how difficult it can be to keep up with today's ever changing technology, along with everyday parenting and all of life's other responsibilities! But we know your child's safety is your first concern, so this resource is intended to give you easily understood tools and information to support your efforts.

To help you get started, here are some tips:

- 1. Guard your kids at the location level. Keep internet devices out of the bedroom as much as possible. Have a bedtime 'turn in' time when Mom and Dad have the devices lined up on a power strip charging in their room. Talk to parents of friends where your kids spend time. (It's worth the awkward conversation.) Ask at school and church about wireless access points and be sure you're satisfied with their answers about monitoring web activity, etc..
- 2. Guard your router/network signal. Is it filtered? Do you worry about kids or babysitters surfing your Wi-Fi for inappropriate content? Check out these easy instructions how to filter your signal.
- 3. Guard the device. Predators can communicate with your children through iPhones, Chromebooks, Mac Books, iPads, and laptops. Here is a simple go-to guide to monitor and filter all of these devices. Although many parents don't realize, predators can also communicate with Xbox/Playstation consoles. Here is a simple guide to filter Xbox/Playstation consoles.
- 4. Understand and monitor social media. Social media is an integral part of our children and teenager's world. It's important for parents to understand the various platforms, how they work, and how to talk to your children being smart when using social media. Here is a handy overview document of various social media platforms. You'll also find this guide helpful: Parenting the Internet Generation: A Blueprint for Teaching Digital Discernment. Instagram and Snapchat in particular are of some of the most popular social media platforms currently. Check out Instagram's Tips for Parents and ConnectSafely's Parent's Guide to Instagram. For Snapchat check out their Safety Center and ConnectSafely's Parent's Guide to Snapchat.
- 5. In short, internet devices need parental controls just like when you prepare your child to get their driver's license... but BEFORE you hand over the keys. You control access to the vehicle, practice with them, quiz them, and remain in control until you're ready to hand over the keys. But even then you want to know where they are going, with whom, and when they will be back. Internet access is no different and can be just as dangerous as an unmonitored teen behind the wheel.

SEXTING

Whether or not you think your teen is sexting, many teens or their friends are doing it. Eye-opening statistics show that 1 in 5 teens admits to sexting. The key word in this statistic is “admit.” There are far more teens who are sexting but don’t admit to it. Many parents are generally unaware their teen is a sexter.

Due to the sexting epidemic that is an unfortunate reality today, it is essential that parents talk frequently to their kids about sexting if they don’t want their teen participating in it. The first question is when to start talking to your kids about the peril sexting brings. The first discussion should commence before your child even gets a cell phone or any device that’s capable of sending a sext (ie. computers, tablets, etc.). Once a child receives such a device, they are susceptible to the influences of sexting. To prevent your teen from sexting you will want to take the initiative. After your child has a device, frequently have an open discussion on the topic.

Frequent and open discussions about sexting will make your child feel comfortable in approaching and talking to you about it. The second question is how to talk to your child about sexting. Sexting is a difficult topic to approach and requires a balancing act. You don’t want to appear too judgmental or forceful, but at the same time you want to be firm with where you stand and help them to see the dangers and consequences.

TO AID IN YOUR DISCUSSION, HERE ARE A FEW HELPFUL TALKING POINTS:

What do you think is considered sexting?

- Sexting: sending someone sexually explicit photographs or messages, whether verbal or in pictures

Is there any harm to sexting?

- Can be charged for child pornography (by sending or receiving sexts)
- Images/messages follow you, you can’t delete them once they are sent
- Sexually objectifies you
- Images are almost always shared with others besides the receiver
- Reputation and future opportunities are often at risk
- Many stories of children being forced into prostitution or sex trafficking begin with the “pimp” using sexts as a means of coercion to get them to comply with their demands

Is sexting worth the attention?

- The receiver and those they show it to are likely to lose some respect for you
- You become a sexual object instead of a real person
- The individual asking will often try to make you feel special but all he/she really wants is a sexually explicit photo. Odds are, if he/she doesn’t get it from you they will just try and get it from someone else. As long as they get it, they don’t care if it’s from you or the next person.

Do you have control over a picture/message once it’s sent?

- Absolutely not. Nearly every teen who receives a sext ends up sharing it or forwarding to others, and many sexts end up on third-party websites. All of this usually occurs without your knowledge or consent.

Why do people sext?

- Seeking attention/approval
- Peer pressure
- Bullying
- Want to satisfy another

REMEMBER THAT THIS IS NOT A ONE-TIME CONVERSATION!

Obtain the CHOSEN documentary and show young people how easily they can be trafficked when they don't know the signs.

As traffickers target younger and younger victims, American youth are engaged in a battle they never prepared for. Be equipped with Shared Hope International's best-selling youth sex trafficking prevention film and resource pack!

Each package includes the true story of teens who faced real-life encounters with trafficking and practical resources to spread awareness and take action.
